M. Maccagno MLA Elected Mayor By Acclamation

When nominations for council closed on Sept. 23, six hats were in the ring for the office of councillor, and one for that of mayor. Elected by acclamation to the office of mayor was Mike Maccagno, MLA. Mr. Maccagno has had a position on the council for many years but never before ran for mayor.

An election will be held on October 14 to choose three councillors from the following six candidates who were nominated.

John Konowalchuk, Ernie Shanks, Floyd McMillan, Mahmoud Tarrabain, Lionel Vincent and John Wolstenholme. The terms of Mr. McMillan and Mr. Vincent expired his year and the seat of Mr. Maccagno is also vacant, which calls or three councillors to be elected nstead of the usual two. For Konowalchuk, Shanks and Terrabain, it is the first time they have sought election to the council. Mr. Wolstenholme was an unsuccessful candidate in 1955.

By-Law Requires That No Dogs Run At Large In Town Of Lac La Biche

LAC LA BICHE — An amended by-law on the control of dogs within the town was given first and second readings at last week's regular meeting of town council. The major alteration in the by-law is a clause requiring that no dogs are to allowed to run at large within the town. Dogs will be impounded for a period of 48 hours and if not claimed will then be destroyed. When animals are released from pound a fee of $3 will be payable. No alteration is to be made in the requirement that a license tag be purchased by the owner or harborer of every dog of the age of one day or over. Any vicious dog may be destroyed by a police constable without impounding.

The meeting was attended by Councillors Vincent, McMillan and Tkachuk, as well as Mayor S. Hamar and Secretary F. Creighton.

Two building permits were approved for the construction of private garages. Gas matters were discussed and correspondence read, and a motion was passed tabling the gas question till after the council meets with government authorities to clear up the financial problem.

Accounts totalling $921.70 were passed for payment.

Dr. Swift Students Entertained By Novel Initiation Ceremonies

LAC LA BICHE — Friday, Sept. 18, brought much excitement to the grade 10 students of the Dr. Swift's Students' Union. This was "Initiation Day".

Being initiated has been a customary way of welcoming the freshmen (grade 10 class) into high school. The initiation party also serves as a "farewell" party for the previous grade 12 graduates who have enrolled in university. All the activities are completely planned by the grade 11 and grade 12 students. At this party the humble freshman must serve and obey his seniors.

This year, the girls' costumes consisted of a man's shirt worn backwards, boys' jeans stuffed with paper, large socks and men's shoes. Their jewelry included carrot earrings and onion necklaces. No make-up was to be worn. Their hair was styled in six pony-tails, or six pig-tails. A pail or a bag was to be carried containing a shoe brush, toothbrush and a doll.

Party apparel for the boys consisted of nylons held up with rubber rings over their jeans, one high-heeled shoe and one bedroom slipper. Their shirts were to be worn backwards. A bowl was to be worn on their heads.

Both sexes wore either a license plate or a bag containing various make-up articles, or a bag with various containers of shoe polish tied with twine around the waist.

Mixed dancing put everyone in a party mood. This was followed by the initiation parade. Then the freshmen introduced themselves to their seniors. Penalties were issued to those who omitted to fulfill the requirements.

"Spot Dancing" prizes were awarded to Joe Cunningham and Joanne Rosychuk and Bobby Henson and Vicki Karpetz. Prizes for the best costumes were given to Donnie Dobson, Nettie Feladichuk, Teddy Myers, Donald Caron, Dianne Cadzow, Joan Smith and Irene Sachko.

Everyone spent an enjoyable evening, especially those who were initiated.

ALBERTANS attending Fall Motor Shows would certainly have lots to attract them if motor car exhibitors had cuties like model Non Dubois perched on their cars' fenders. The young lady pictured here was modelling a genuine leopard skin bikini and coat at the British Fashion Show in France.

PROMINENT AUTHOR SAYS:

Female Alcoholics Outnumbered 8-1 Women Handle Liquor Better; in the series "OUR DRINKING HABITS"

PART 6

By Howard Whitman

It looked like a bad scandal brewing in Madison, Wis. An attractive matron in the rose-bordered suburbs was reported inviting deliverymen into her home—the laundryman, the milkman, the parcel driver. The invitations were couched in the words, "I'll bet you could use a drink. C'mon in and let me fix you one." But the implications went a good deal further. Well, it wasn't so. A drink was offered, to be sure. But only a drink. And the story behind it? The woman was a "hidden drinker," one of the many prim and least-suspected housewives througout the land who have taken to the day time slug.

This Madison woman started with a nip of sherry, which seemed all right because after all this is a ladylike beverage and you even use it for cooking. By the time she swung to hard liquor she had encountered just enough broadsides from the Wisconsin Council on Alcoholism to nurse a niggling fear that this might be her trouble.

Howard Whitman

"Solitary drinking during the daytime": a telltale symptom. So rather than face it, she donned the role of Good Samaritan and started to inviting the weary deliveryman in for a kindly draught. Now of course she couldn't let them drink alone. She merely joined them — and nobody could call her a solitary drinker!

Actually there are fewer women drinkers today, but more women "problem drinkers." The best research available indicates that in 1945 more than half the women in America did some drinking, while this year the figure has dipped downward to 45 percent. However, of the nation's estimated 5,000,000 alcoholics, the ratio is now one woman to every 5.5 men. It used to be one woman to every six men. From 1940 to 1953, while the rate of male alcoholism rose 45 percent, the female rate rose to 52 percent.

In Canada women apparently handle their liquor better. More of them drink than in the U.S. (Canada 64 percent, U.S. 45 percent) yet the ratio of Canadian alcoholics is only one woman to eight men.

Recently at a Parents' Day at an Eastern university, fathers were subject to no surveillance but mothers were limited to two drinks. A fraternity boy explained, "We've had experience with them before. Occasionally it can be pretty embarrassing. We don't want any student having to 'explain' his mother later on."

WANT TO BE PICKED UP

In days past the woman drinker was seen as the barfly. She was a half-coherent type, a wet cigarette at the corner of her mouth, eyes straight ahead, and she usually drank herself broke. Today the woman at the bar may be anything from a garden club president having her Dubonnet-on-the-rocks to a B-girl drinking straight tea and looking for business.

Psychologist Ernest Dichter, following a study of public attitudes toward drinking, reported, "Women who drink in taverns are still regarded with suspicion. As one respondent said: 'If a woman drinks in a bar it means she wants to be picked up.'

"On the other hand we find that there is an incipient acceptance of the woman buying packaged liquor when the situation seems to indicate that 'she is doing the family shopping.'"

Doctors and treatment centers confirm that where serious female drinking is involved, the scene of the crime is likely to be the prim little family kitchen rather than the dusky gin mill, and the implement — a bottle hidden from the kids and daddy in a fliptop cannister wastebasket.

NOT OVER-SEXED

Another common belief is that the female heavy drinker is oversexed. She is pictured as using drink for protective coloration in what is essentially a career of bed-hopping. This is not true.

The Quarterly Journal of Studies on Alcohol has reported a study of alcoholic women in which there was a sex problem all right, but the problem was frigidity. And Dr. F. J. Curran, in an intensive study of personality factors in an intensive study of personality factors in female problem drinkers, likewise noted frequent sexual frigidity. He reported, "Contrary to public opinion, the alcoholic women do not express the sexuality

THE Homemaker

By BERTHA M. McCUTCHEON

Do you get good value for the money you spend on nylon stockings? Here is some information from the Canadian Association of Consumer bulletins which may help you.

B. McCutcheon

The first thing you must learn in buying stockings is to buy by the weight or thread (denier) and by the number of stitches (gauge). Buy the proper weight for the purpose. The lower the denier, the finer the thread. Generally we buy 15 denier—sometimes you can buy 12 or 10. These are very fine and constitute only a single filament. If you want a stocking suitable for around the house, trips to town, or a stocking that will stand up and still look attractive, try a 30 denier which has several filaments. For heavy wear, there are 40 or 60 denier, which are very tough indeed.

When you have found the right weight of thread, then look for as high a stitch count as you can find. This is the gauge. The stitch, or gauge if high or close can help resist snags. Fewer stitches gives a more open stocking and more possibility of popping a run.

There are a few other things you must watch too. One of these is size, as it affects the life of a stocking. You should be able to pull the stocking, when it is on, an inch beyond your toe. Not only foot length but leg length is important too. If the stocking is too long, you will garter it in at the fine part of the stocking and get runs. If too short, the pull at the heavier top section or welt, causes runs. Leg length is usually marked on stockings, and if it isn't, have the saleslady measure the stocking for you—from heel to top, find your best length and then always ask for it when buying.

What do you do with your stockings after they are on your leg makes a difference to the length of time they stay in service. Always garter your stocking when your knee is bent, to prevent strain. If seams need to be straightened, roll the stocking down and twist and pull it from the top.

Stockings should be washed and rinsed well after each wearing as perspiration and soil left in them can shorten their life. For drying stockings, use a smooth rod or line. Even a bit of rough string used for a line can put snags in stockings, or cause runs.

Prevent snags in drawers or stocking trays by putting stockings in pliofilm, or other snag proof bags. And is you've been out in the garden or house cleaning and your hands are rough, put on gloves before putting on your nylons.

Get the best service for your money with nylon stockings. Buy carefully, wear carefully.

In France, the price for the 1959 soft wheat crop has been advanced from $1.96 to $2.07 a bushel to enable farmers to meet higher farming costs.

Gospel News Bulletin

By Rev. C. G. Ness

Since our last report, we have concluded meetings in Adborg, Manitoba, with very good results and good response to the gospel of deliverance. It was our privilege to see many healings and salvation of souls; the blessing of the Lord was rich on many lives.

From there we were privileged to be at Hodgson, at the Pigwee Indian Reserve, where we held a series of meetings with our Indian friends. We found them to be very fine people with great faith in a living God. The simplicity of faith was greatly displayed at the acceptance of the gospel of deliverance. They are a people of great trust and confidence in the Bible. Here, again, we saw a display of God's power.

At present we are at Swan River, Man. If you have needs or problems write us at Box 129, Boyle. We will be glad to help you in any way we can.

Female Alcoholics Outnumbered 8-1

more freely in the acute alcoholic intoxication."

It is tough for any woman to admit she is a drunk. It is bad enough for a man, but for a woman who is reared from childhood toward gentle and retiring daintiness, it is unspeakable. Hence the "hidden" toper.

Dr. Marvin A. Block, chairman of the American Medical Association's Committee on Alcoholism, comments, "Shame often keeps the alcholic from getting help. This is especially true of women. The alcoholic is looked down upon by most people, but society much more severely condemns the woman alcoholic.

CONVENIENT EXCUSES

"Mother's sick headaches, her monthly disturbances are used as excuses for her not appearing at dinner, or at social functions. These same excuses may be used by the patient herself for taking alcohol as medicine, as a sedative to relieve cramps or headache, or to help get through the day's work."

The very accessibility of liquor and the easy opportunity to imbibe in secret complicates the woman drinker's problem. She's alone in the house. The liquor cabinet is right over there; she just dusted it. There is no boss around, no co-workers, as there are at George's office. No one to smell her breath until it has worn off. The jag will be gone too, by time the kids come home from school. And George — if he suspects anything, well, her tooth was kicking up again.

This is danger drinking. Liquor is no longer the gourmet's condiment, the bon vivant's accessory, the tired businessman's relaxer; it is the drug of the sick at heart. Like every other artificial escape from life, it is taken in the hope that it will transform reality. Instead, it transforms the person.

HOW IT HAPPENS

Here is the verbatim story of one woman's downward drag as she later told it to A.A.:

"My husband's business made it necessary for him to be away from home quite a lot. I started harmlessly enough with a couple of drinks before dinner, prompted as I now believe, by a resentment over being left alone. Before long I was drinking after dinner too. I began to look forward to the nights when he would be out.

"Then one day, as I went from my kitchen to the dining room and passed the cabinet where we kept our liquor, it was just as if someone spoke to me saying, 'What's to keep you from taking a drink during the daytime ?'

"From then on my drinking gathered momentum rapidly. I started at three in the afternoon instead of before dinner. Near the end I could hardly wait until my husband left the house in the morning to get started.

"I managed to keep some semblance of order in the home, but more and more frequently, I was being 'caught.'

HUSBANDS CAN HELP

"We went through the bottle-marking, bottle-hiding stage. My boy was beginning to notice the change in me, referring to it as 'Mother's silly moods.' At the end, he was actually afraid of me."

A.A. has helped thousands of women. So have ministers, counselors, psychiatrists. But it is this observer's feeling that husbands can help most.

Pliny, the historian, tells us that the romantic kiss began in Rome —with Roman husbands kissing their wives to find out if they had been drinking. Even without the detective work it's a good custom; for many wives, more kisses — more understanding and affection — might lessen the lure of the bottle.

Joan Bergheim Exchanges Vows With Eli Suhan In Double Ring Ceremony

GOOSE LAKE — St. Mary's Church, Rich Lake, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Miss Joan Bergheim, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bergheim of Goose Lake, exchanged vows with Mr. Eli Suhan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Suhan of Helena.

Rev. R. S. Greene performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar banked with a variety of flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her floor-length gown of white lace over net, trimmed with sequins and pearls. The finger-tip veil was held in place by a crown of sequins and pearls and the bride carried a bouquet of red roses. Her only jewelry was rhinestone earrings, a gift of the groom.

All bridesmaids wore similar dresses of nylon chiffon with matching headpieces, white shoes and gloves. Their jewelry was pearl earrings, gift of the bride, and all carried bouquets of matching flowers. Bridesmaids were Miss Doris Bergheim, sister of the bride, in pink; Miss Louise Suhan, sister of the groom, in yellow; Miss Lynda Bergheim, cousin of the bride, in blue.

The groom's attendants were Mr. Steve Oncuil, uncle of the groom; Mr. Stanley Bergheim, cousin of the bride; Mr. Arnold Oncuil, cousin of the groom.

To receive her guests the bride's mother chose a blue crepe dress with white accessories.

A banquet was served for approximately 170 guests at the bride's home, after which a dance was held at Craigend Hall. Music was provided by the Louis Turgeon Orchestra.
